I can't do this anymore, not without help.
"Thanks for speaking with me, Father."

"Some weird things are happening at my job."

"The guy who has been helping me isn't really able to anymore, and I need someone to talk to."

"I can't let my son down again."

"Some weird things are happening at my job."

"Can you help me, Father?"

Can you help me, Father? Please stop calling me Father.

I thought we voted and you were going to be a minister again.

Bo, don't interrupt.

"You and your brother need to stop eavesdropping on our conversation."
I'm sorry about that. So what's going on with your job, Larry?

You won't believe me, but...

"The Museum comes alive."

"Of course the guy I'm replacing never told me this."

"So now I'm being attacked by things as dangerous as Atilla the Hun."

"And by things as annoying as a monkey."

"I have no control over my own life."

"Faith?! Of course I've lost faith, these things are happening to me for no reason! Larry, you've lost your faith. You have to see the meaning behind these things. That's only because you're not looking for a reason."
I don't understand why this is happening to me, Graham.

Larry, you've lost your faith. You have to see the meaning behind these things.

Faith?! Of course I've lost faith, these things are happening to me for no reason!

That's only because you're not looking for a reason.
You have to ask yourself: What kind of person are you? Are you the kind of person who sees signs, miracles, or do you believe people just get lucky? Is it possible there are no coincidences?

Why were you chosen to be the nightguard at the museum of natural history?

You can't control things like the monkey, but you can control what that monkey means to you.

That's what makes you better than the monkey. That's what makes you evolved.

If you want your world to change then you have to change the way you interpret your world. This is your chance to be a hero for your son.

My wife once told me to see, and now I'm giving you the same advice. These aren't disasters, they are opportunities. But you need to see it.

"YOU MAY BE RIGHT."

Alright Nick, you are going to watch your dad do some pretty cool stuff. Some magic tricks and some toy keys and all of a sudden I'm a hero. Better yet...
